Comment:

Dear Chairman Nichols,

I am writing to thank you for your leadership as the California Air Resources Board (CARB) moves forward in the fight against global warming and to support the Administrative Fee regulation coming up for a vote on June 25, 2009.

A stable funding source is needed in order to continue the important work of CARB and other state agencies to implement California's global warming strategies. The proposed AB 32 administrative fee provides that funding in an equitable manner by imposing a fee on major sources of greenhouse gases in California, rather than continuing to rely on state funds.

In light of the state's already dire budget situation, adopting the fee regulation is a responsible action to provide the resources necessary to administer key strategies and regulations to curb greenhouse gas emissions from all sectors of the economy.

I strongly support adoption of the fee to ensure that CARB maintains momentum toward meeting the state's greenhouse gas reduction goals. Thank you again for your leadership and I again urge you to adopt the AB 32 administrative fee.

Sincerely,

Carol Stoughton

Dear Chairman Nichols,

I am writing to thank you for your leadership as the California Air Resources Board (CARB) moves forward in the fight against global warming and to support the Administrative Fee regulation coming up for a vote on June 25, 2009.

A stable funding source is needed in order to continue the important work of CARB and other state agencies to implement California's global warming strategies. The proposed AB 32 administrative fee provides that funding in an equitable manner by imposing a fee on major sources of greenhouse gases in California, rather than continuing to rely on state funds.

In light of the state's already dire budget situation, adopting the fee regulation is a responsible action to provide the resources necessary to administer key strategies and regulations to curb greenhouse gas emissions from all sectors of the economy.

I strongly support adoption of the fee to ensure that CARB maintains momentum toward meeting the state's greenhouse gas reduction goals. Thank you again for your leadership and I again urge you to adopt the AB 32 administrative fee.

Unfortunately time is not on our side. Californians cannot afford to wait until the State is able to get its fiscal house in order before moving forward on this issue. Adopting the fee regulation is a good alternative funding mechanism that will provide the resources necessary to administer key strategies and regulations to curb greenhouse gas emissions from all sectors of the economy.

I strongly support adoption of the fee to ensure that CARB maintains momentum toward meeting the state's greenhouse gas reduction goals. Thank you again for your leadership and I again urge you to adopt the AB 32 administrative fee.

Best regards,

WMR

A stable funding source is needed in order to continue the important work of CARB and other state agencies to implement California's global warming strategies. The proposed AB 32 administrative fee provides that funding in an equitable manner by imposing a fee on major sources of greenhouse gases in California, rather than continuing to rely on state funds.

In light of the state's already dire budget situation, adopting the fee regulation is a responsible action to provide the resources necessary to administer key strategies and regulations to curb greenhouse gas emissions from all sectors of the economy.

I strongly support adoption of the fee to ensure that CARB maintains momentum toward meeting the state's greenhouse gas reduction goals. Thank you again for your leadership and I again urge you to adopt the AB 32 administrative fee.

The proposed AB 32 administrative fee provides that funding in an equitable manner by imposing a fee on major sources of greenhouse gases in California, rather than continuing to rely on state funds.

In light of the state's already dire budget situation, adopting the fee regulation is a responsible action to provide the resources necessary to administer key strategies and regulations to curb greenhouse gas emissions from all sectors of the economy.

I strongly support adoption of the fee to ensure that CARB maintains momentum toward meeting the state's greenhouse gas reduction goals. Thank you again for your leadership and I again urge you to adopt the AB 32 administrative fee.

Dear Chairman Nichols,

I am writing to thank you for your leadership as the California Air Resources Board (CARB) moves forward in the fight against global warming and to support the Administrative Fee regulation coming up for a vote on June 25, 2009.

A stable funding source is needed in order to continue the important work of CARB and other state agencies to implement California's global warming strategies. The proposed AB 32 administrative fee provides that funding in an equitable manner by imposing a fee on major sources of greenhouse gases in California, rather than continuing to rely on state funds.
