Accreditation and Scope

“An accredited Certification Body (CB) may also offer unaccredited certificates for standards for which it is not accredited. If you want to rely on a certificate, you should understand the qualifications of the CB that issued the certificate and whether or not the CB (and certificate) are accredited.”

Considerations

- A lot more work to do in evaluating the verification, accreditation, standard and governance systems
- Looking for a flow diagram of all the programs and how they are related to each other to speed up the process. If not, will try to create internally.
- Decisions have to be made about what the principles/criteria will look like
