Comment:

Dear Chairman Nichols,

As a consumer and concerned citizen, I urge the California Air Resources Board to strengthen and adopt the 2010 Consumer Products Regulation Amendments. This would reduce the volatile organic compounds (VOCs) found in products such as multipurpose cleaning products, metal polishers, insecticides and window cleaners.

VOCs are toxic, smog-forming emissions that harm our health and contaminate our air. Everyone is vulnerable to the effects of these chemicals, which are emitted by products often used where we work and live, as well as where our children study and play.

- Many children in our communities suffer from asthma, and the chemicals emitted by cleaning products at school only increase their chances of an attack or of developing asthma in the future.

- A recent study by the Journal of Occupational and Environmental Medicine found that 12 percent of work-related asthma cases are linked to the use of cleaning products.

- According to the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, teachers and janitors have the highest asthma rates in the working population.

I encourage you to strongly regulate and reduce the harmful chemicals in consumer products. In doing so, we can set an important precedent in protecting the health of families and workers—not only in our state, but nationwide as well.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Monica Howe

Comment:

I am a California supporter of the Environmental Working Group (EWG) who wants cleaner air. I urge the California Air Resources Board to adopt the 2010 Consumer Products Regulation Amendments. These amendments would reduce smog-forming volatile organic compounds (VOCs) found in cleaning supplies and many other consumer goods.

They would also create product-specific bans of key ingredients with significant health or environmental concerns, including alkylphenol ethoxylates, perchloroethylene and chemicals with high potential to worsen global warming.

I encourage you to strongly regulate and reduce the harmful chemicals in consumer products. In doing so, we can set an important precedent in protecting the health of families and workers -- not only in our state but nationwide as well.

I appreciate the protections you have already put into place -- thank you for taking air pollution and our health seriously!

Subject: Please ban or strictly regulate volatile organic compounds

Comment:

Volatile organic compounds are much worse than tobacco smoke as an air pollutant. It is now well known that tobacco smoke is a carcinogenic assault on human health whether it is inhaled directly or if it is inhaled as a second-hand unintended exposure. But for tobacco smoke the human body partially blocks out the particulates of smoke by physically keeping some of those particles on the outside of the lung cell wall. Unfortunately organic solvents present in the air easily pass through the human (lung) cell wall because those cell walls are made of lipids that easily and quickly absorb organic solvents of all types.

I would ask for an outright ban or very strict regulation on most volatile organic solvents, because even licensed commercial users of these solvents can not restrict the movement of air from carrying these solvents once they vaporize. Co-workers in the vicinity can't avoid exposure in just the same way that second hand smoke exposes non-smokers to the air pollution created by burning tobacco. People, plants, and animals breathe these gases and though you can't see vapors in the same way one might see smoke, breathing those vapors constitutes a very toxic assault of organic solvents that get absorbed and circulated in our bodies.

Solvents not filtered out air by victims of exposure, will eventually end up in watersheds and in soils that should be kept free and clean of this assault on our health. Too many wells and water sources have already been declared as unfit to drink for similar reasons of toxic plumes created by these same kinds of liquids being dumped or leaked into the soil.

Please, please, please help California lead the nation in banning this toxic class of chemicals from polluting our air, bodies, and environment.

Good air quality is important. Lessening the endocrine disruptors and other harmful chemicals in our bodies is also a good thing. It may even lessen the burden on our health care system, another good thing. Manufacturers CAN reformulate their products. Please protect us consumers. Thanks, Cassandra

Comment:

Dear Chairman Nichols,

I don't live in California, rather in the pretty darn conservative State of Montana. Our State Constitution guarantees us a right to live in a healthy place. If California strengthens and adopts the 2010 Consumer Products Regulation Amendments, this action may eventually filter to my home State, and to other States. I make a concerted effort to purchase products that will if not enhance, certainly not harm my family, my pets, and the environment. This can be difficult, since we often don't know what is present in multipurpose cleaning products, metal polishers, insecticides and window cleaners, and the EPA is not allowed to regulate them.

Please maintain California's leadership in environmental matters by limiting VOCs, as we are all vulnerable to their effects. By doing so, you can help maintain the health of all Americans.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Melanie Miller

Comment:

I am a lifelong Californian who strongly supports regulation for cleaner air. I urge the California Air Resources Board to adopt the 2010 Consumer Products Regulation Amendments. I support the amendments primarily because they will reduce smog-forming volatile organic compounds (VOCs) found in cleaning supplies and many other consumer goods. VOCs are high-priority air pollutants for stricter regulation, in my view.

I also support the amendments' creation of product-specific bans of key ingredients that have significant health or environmental concerns, including alkylphenol ethoxylates, perchloroethylene and chemicals with high potential to worsen global warming.

Approving these amendments will set an important precedent in protecting the health of families and workers nationwide, as California's regulations tend to lead companies to adopt our state's standards for all of their products, everywhere they are sold.

I appreciate the protections you have already put into place--thank you for doing what it takes to protect public health and our state's plethora of unique and ecologically important landscapes.
