The natural gas industry should not be exempt to the stricter air toxin reporting reporting. It would better not to give exemption to small projects. Lower the exemption mass of toxic gases. Also require reporting for the thousands of breakdown and oxidation products of HAPs.

Comment:

I have only recently become aware of the proposed reporting regulation and, if I understand the complicated language correctly, it looks like we would be required to comply with the additional requirement. That being the case, I would strongly urge the Board to incorporate this reporting into the existing online reports we already submit. We are a small retail gas station, and it is a challenge to comply with existing regulations without adding more. Please resist adding an additional process for us, when there is an existing platform that could be used for this new reporting requirement.

Thank you.

Comment:

It is recognized that the question regarding the emissions reporting of portable equipment registered under PERP has already been addressed (report this equipment if it is located at a facility greater than or equal to three months). Notwithstanding, I am offering concern that the current SCAQMD AER reporting tool, which will be used for the AB 617 data collection in the South Coast district, currently excludes reporting of "Portable equipment registered under the Statewide Portable Equipment Registration Program".

Activity level - there is still no specific guidance on how to capture actual voc releases during coating.
Engineering estimates - because of the vagueness of this statement.
Would like time for the regulatory community and the sources to clearly define these based on current technology and methodology
Would help if there was a form associated with reporting already available for review.

Thank you for taking comments. I have worked closely with the Monterey Bay Air Resource Board helping clients come into and stay in compliance to operate both diesel and natural gas power generators. None of these clients want to operate generators and to do the work to comply and the high expense. I do not like the term victim, however in a sense the inability of PG&E to in any reasonable time frame supply power has forced them to spend money labor resources and hire people like me to navigate the paper work when they would prefer to write a check and have clean reliable power.

What I believe needs to be considered when you consider more regulation, which you may have the right, however it may not be the right thing to do.

1. Jobs have already been lost because the cost to operate on generators is so high. Many of our clients grow cannabis which has seen a steady decline in the price of product as a result of supply and demand. Fees and taxes however are fixed.

2. Publishing this data adds to a very high security risk for these business as they operate on cash, not because of choice, but federal banking laws. When the state publishes these locations it is an open invitation for these business to have greater security issues both for product theft and the cash needed to operate.

I sincerely believe that no ill will is involved, however unintended consequences are added cost to business that provide many agricultural jobs and related services will cut back as margins are already tight. The added risk of inviting crime to a pinpoint location with the potential for property loss, injury or death seems unnecessary, when the goal is to be on the grid, once the utility can add resources.

Thank you for reading, for understanding this is not a situation that anybody foresaw and all are working hard to resolve.

Best regards,

George Osborne

Subject: Technical Comments and Questions on the "Thresholds"

Comment:

Table A-3 shows sectors and compounds that CARB proposes to include in the inventory of sources and emissions. The approach is quite different from what was discussed at the Board hearing, as sectors and compounds not listed fall out of the rule.

It is difficult to assess the impact of this table because the analysis that led to it has not been provided. It is not easy to discern what will fall out of the inventory. It seems important to be able to consider that.

These are technical questions and comments about the definitions of sectors, coding strategy, and rationale for distinctions that don't seem on the face to be justified. Please see the provided document.

The approach needs to be forward looking and reflect conditions today and into the future.
