Comment:

To whom it may concern,

I think the widespread adoption of alternative fuel vehicles is a deeply inspiring thing. I am pleased to see electric and hydrogen vehicles on our roads. Now, nearly every manufacturer has alternative power vehicles coming out. There are literally dozens of planned new battery/hydrogen vehicles coming out soon.

With this in mind, I believe taxpayer fiduciaries would be wise to start being selective in support of alternative energy vehicles. Incentives for very rich people buying luxury electric/hydrogen vehicles seems unfair. Even a $40,000 vehicle is out of reach for most people. I would rather see incentives limited to lower priced vehicles, even if the incentives are smaller.

Thank You,
Stephen

Subject: No more subsidies for billionaire hypocrites!

Comment:

I strongly urge you not to increase the subsidy for electric vehicles. The primary beneficiary of the subsidies is Tesla, a company that loses hundreds of millions of dollars every quarter despite receiving billions of federal and state subsidies and tax credits. Tesla's CEO, Elon Musk, the great climate change savior, commutes to work every day in a private jet that consumes 500 gallons of jet fuel...per hour. Read the news. Tesla is the worst managed company in California. All these subsidies are doing is propping up the Solyndra of electric vehicles. Do something for the PEOPLE of California. Reduce the burden on tax payers, the highest in the nation.
