Comment:

Honorable Board Members;

This is a superior idea. It has been interesting to read responses to my advocacy of planting and replanting California forests following decimation by drought, disease, climate change, and fire. Many people are apparently looking for that single transformative solution that preserves the natural world; and by extension their lifestyles. So they opine that planting trees cannot change our world climate. Naturally, this is true, and never proposed in the first place. It is an interesting comment, however.

Proposals such as tfs2019 should consider inclusion of statements indicating that it is part of a broad set of interrelated actions ,laws and regulations, which acting together will provide intervention toward significant mitigation and adaptation.

Please also consider a parallel endorsement providing functional and concrete support for reforestation broadly. Firefighting is not enough. We cannot necessarily replant what has been lost, for the very reasons outlined in tfs2019. We have to follow the horticultural and fire science on this; however we will desperately, universally need the carbon sequestration, the shading, the habitats, and the oxygen in the coming decades.

Thanks!

Bill Mayben

Comment:

This letter from more than 20 organizations warning of the dangers to the worlds forests and the global climate from relying on offsets to support "carbon neutral emissions growth" for the global aviation sector CORSIA scheme was sent to Gov Newsom and ARB Chair Nichols in June, and was presented to Chair Nichols and ARB directors during open public comment at the June ARB public meeting. It is submitted here for inclusion in the public record on this matter.

Comment:

Dear California Air Resources Board,

I am deeply concerned about your possible endorsement of the Tropical Forest Standard (TFS). I am an environmental geographer who specializes in climate change and other socio-environmental problems we face as a society. As a current Ph.D. student, my research surrounds climate change mitigation and adaptation in California with an emphasis on environmental laws and programs in addition to important socio-economic theories. What I have found through my research is that over time economic demands weaken laws that are made to increase socio-environmental resilience. The TFS will do just that by allowing GHG emissions to exceed reduction goals via offset credits. California has much to be proud of in terms of creating laws, programs, and tools to mitigate and adapt to climate change. The TFS will effectively un-do so much important progress while catering to corporations. In addition to those basic concerns, a major concern includes the leakage provisions and required accounting as it will be extremely difficult to assure accounting accuracy as well as the implications of illegal activities such as logging and mining. Another concern includes the social and environmental safeguards. We have to recognize that California will not be in complete control of grievance processes nor will California be able to assure prior and informed consent. I urge the California Air Resources Board to at least reconsider jumping into the TFS program and instead strengthen the cap on GHGs in California. There have already been adjustments, such as SB 97, to GHG emissions standards following AB 32 that allow for exemptions and the current cap and trade program already allows for GHG emissions to continue above the rate that they should be to truly see reductions in atmospheric carbon dioxide levels.

Sincerely,

-Deseret Weeks

To whom it matters -

The whole concept of trading pollution is based on keeping business - mostly big business - moving smoothly, and without interruption. I get it.

Much money has been given to politicians for a long time to make sure that this sort of con game is allowed to continue. It was a bad idea from the get-go, and it's a bad idea to extend it.

Business needs to take care of its own shit like the rest of us. I ask nobody else to wipe my ass. It's not way beyond time to require the same sort of self-care for polluters. They've been given a free ride, and it's time to end it.

Please do not allow polluting corporations to offset their climate-changing emissions by purchasing tropical offsets in the global south.

This has always been a shell game, and always will be.

Instead, such corporations should be taxed at a high rate for the climate-changing carbon / methane emissions for which they are responsible.

Human beings are facing the most extreme crisis of this civilization. The effects of climate change will not be mitigated, if at all, for decades to come. We must do all we can to end the use of fossil fuels and all carbon-producing practices.

I am writing to you as a California resident. Please do not endorse the California Tropical Forest Standard. Tropical forest offsets must not be a part of California's Carbon Trading System, or adopted by the International Commercial Aviation Organization or other out of state entities.

These carbon offsets allow polluters to keep on polluting, instead of reducing their carbon footprint. They also would allow airline emissions to keep on growing.

California should not be encouraging tropical forest carbon offsets through the endorsement of the TFS.

And they don't even pay the costs because it is passed on to consumers who pay the higher prices while the polluters increase their profits.

Comment:

For California to meaningfully address global climate change, it is critical for the state to support the protection of tropical forests. As a California resident, I support California using the state's global influence to protect tropical forests through endorsement of the Tropical Forest Standard.

Cutting and burning tropical forests like the Amazon threatens their unique animals, plants and millions of people who depend on them to survive. Deforestation also contributes more greenhouse gas emissions than all the cars, trucks, and ships in the world every single year - stopping it is a critical step to avoiding dangerous global warming and meeting the goals of the Paris climate agreement.

California's proposed Standard for rainforest credits would create incentives to protect tropical forests -- whole forest landscapes, across entire states or nations. It would also require that programs producing rainforest credits consult and collaborate with indigenous and other traditional communities who use and safeguard forests. And that their communities are partners who benefit from these programs. The money generated from the sale of the credits directly benefits the programs that are protecting forests, reducing emissions and creating sustainable indigenous livelihoods that are in harmony with and strengthen their cultural traditions.

The world must address the loss of tropical forests to stop climate change. Now is the time for California to directly promote the reduction of greenhouse gas emissions from the cutting and burning of tropical forests. We can't save the climate without tropical forests. The California Air Resources Board should endorse the California Tropical Forest Standard.

Clerk of the Board,

I'm joining many others in asking you to not endorse the California Tropical Forest Standard, to ensure that these tropical forests are never accepted into California's carbon trading system, or adopted by out-of-state entities like the ICAO.

We need companies, corporations, people to REDUCE the carbon footprints, not continue to pollute just because they can afford the inconvenience of paying a fee that will do nothing to help the serious pollution crisis.

Thank you,

Jan Buckwald

To All This May Concern:

We are up against the wall, so to speak, when it comes to the changing climate. I work with tropical farmers and have been extremely concerned for years about the impact of the changing climate as it affects everyone worldwide in different ways.

While the concept of carbon offset credits sounds good on paper, in actuality, it provides many large corporations and the airlines an easy loophole where they can continue to pollute and "write it off." The reality is that the Tropical Forest Standard is incredibly corrupt. No surprise; it has ever been thus. I have seen the devastation done to the Indonesian rain forest and in Central and South American forests. We are losing plant, animal and insect species at an unprecedented rate -- by some counts, every four-to-eight minutes! Every month we are recording higher global temperatures on every continent. Africa and South America are drying up and will rapidly lose crops that they depend on for survival as they sell their coffee, chocolate, vanilla, bananas and much more to Europe and the USA. If these people lose their crops what will they do and where will they go??

This is the century of desperation for food, water, and making a living. The ONLY way we are going to lower the carbon footprint is by leaving it in the ground. With the tundra in Alaska without permafrost, more carbon is going into the atmosphere every day.

This isn't a wake-up call -- it's huge shout-out that if humans are going to survive to the end of this century, we'd damn well better come up with workable solutions!! We need to act quickly-but-wisely. Stop cutting the big polluters a lot of slack. We need smart ways to save our planet!!

Please, for the sake of the planet, for the sake of the children here and now and in the future and for the sake of all creatures more or less great and small, do not allow big industry polluters to conduct themselves as "business as usual" in the 80's we as a society had a big chance to halt the most dramatic aspects of climate change, well frankly, not anymore and we as a species on this one blue or not so blue, do not have the luxury to allow the usual polluting industries of the world to think they have license to go on as usual, destroying the planet for profit, at it's and ours and our children's and children's future? expense, so please find a conscience somewhere deep in side you, those that can make a difference and say no, to any and all carbon offsets.

Were out of time for no longer is it on our side, it's either dramatic swift action, or we and the planet are doomed to extinction, it's that real and that scary, just follow all the current events of science, get your head out of the sand of denial, one planet, it's all we have, there is no second home not even for the super rich with all there wealth, there just like all the rest of us and their precious money will not save them period!

Comment:

"Carbon offsets" are an absurd policy that allow companies and the government to make it look like they are doing something to fight climate change when in fact they are doing nothing and are simply taking credit for vegetation that was already there. Beyond that, sometimes these "offsets" involve displacing people who live in the ecosystem they are "acquiring". Furthermore, we need to be reducing our emissions, not just offsetting them. No carbon offset policies!!!

As a Californian, I feel strongly that our state should lead the way on climate change adaptation and mitigation--as we have already been doing. Offsets, while they certainly have their place in a green economy, are just not as good a solution as reducing emissions and climate pollution in the first place, especially for large companies and corporations. Carbon offsets allow those corporations to keep polluting. Furthermore, the offsets run the risk of displacing native people in the Amazon and other areas that offsets supposedly support. And the efficacy of offsets in the long-run is unknown and the integrity of current projects is difficult to measure. California should not endorse them through endorsement of TFS.

Comment:

I urge you to not endorse the California Tropical Forest Standard, and to ensure that these tropical forest offsets never are accepted into California's carbon trading system, or adopted by out-of-state entities like the International Commercial Aviation Organization (ICAO).

Carbon offsets allow big emitters in California to keep polluting, instead of reducing their carbon footprint. They perpetuate pollution hotspots and prevent California from taking real action on climate change. If the ICAO were to adopt tropical forest offsets, it would allow airline emissions to continue growing while putting tropical forests into the market over the protests of local communities -- a bad idea.

Tropical forest carbon offsets lack integrity, pose unacceptably high risks of violating indigenous and human rights, and are impossible to police across national borders. California should not be encouraging them through the endorsement of the TFS.

Subject: Opposed to the California Troical Forest Standard

Comment:

Offsets should not be the price for reversing deforestation. Offsets allow increases in ghg emissions for offset purchasers and co-pollutants not already adequately regulated. Refinery emissions in particular impact nearby communities of color in California most vulnerable to impacts of climate change and co-pollutants. The Tropical Forest Standard does not prevent leakage. Enforceability is difficult when the national government such as Brazil is facilitating forest fires and other methods of deforestation. Difficult to assure rate will continue to fall. Giving credit to one province for reducing the rate of deforestation when the rest of the nation is increasing deforestation accomplishes little of value. Corruption remains a serious concern in Brazil and will affect enforceability and determination of baselines used for calculations. The impact of planting non-native tree plantations could be destructive of indigenous populations. Stick to making existing offsets providing benefit to California real and enforceable.

Subject: Do NOT endorse the California Tropical Forest Standard
Comment:

Thursday, August 29, 2019

Clerk of the Board
California Air Resources Board
1001 I Street
Sacramento, California 95814

Subject: Do NOT endorse the California Tropical Forest Standard

To the Air Resources Board:

As a California resident, I am writing to urge you to not endorse the California Tropical Forest Standard, and to ensure that these tropical forest offsets never are accepted into California's carbon trading system, or adopted by out-of-state entities like the International Commercial Aviation Organization (ICAO).

"Our duty to the whole, including to the unborn generations, bids us to restrain an unprincipled present-day minority from wasting the heritage of these unborn generations. The movement for the conservation of wildlife and the larger movement for the conservation of all our natural resources are essentially democratic in spirit, purpose and method."
-- Theodore Roosevelt

Carbon offsets allow big emitters in California to keep polluting, instead of reducing their carbon footprint. They perpetuate pollution hotspots and prevent California from taking real action on climate change. If the ICAO were to adopt tropical forest offsets, it would allow airline emissions to continue growing while putting tropical forests into the market over the protests of local communities. It's totally unacceptable.

"Do not suffer your good nature, when application is made, to say 'Yes' when you should say 'No'. Remember, it is a public not a private cause that is to be injured or benefited by your choice."
-- George Washington

Tropical forest carbon offsets lack integrity, pose unacceptably high risks of violating indigenous and human rights, and are impossible to police across national borders. California should not be encouraging them through the endorsement of the Tropical Forest Standard.

"A thing is right when it tends to preserve the integrity, stability, and beauty of the biotic community. It is wrong when it tends otherwise."

-- Aldo Leopold

Thank you for your consideration of my comments. Please do NOT add my name to your mailing list. I will learn about future developments on this issue from other sources.

Sincerely,
Christopher Lish
San Rafael, CA

Subject: Reduce emissions, don't paper them over with tropical forest offsets

Comment:

I write to oppose the California Tropical Forest Standard. I strongly support rain forest preservation and reforestation as part of the solution to rising carbon emissions. However, these goals should be part of the baseline, not traded off against slower emissions reductions. In addition, as recent news on the fires in the Brazilian rain forest have underlined, rain forest preservation is difficult to monitor and enforce, and offsets like those proposed have proven easy to "game". It will not be easy to reduce emissions to the necessary extent, but we need to do the hard work, not settle for misleading alternatives.

Comment:

I am a native-born San Franciscan and have actually made a study of these types of efforts to address climate change. It is clear to me that they are primarily political maneuvers that are done to falsely claim credit for saving the environment. In fact, they do very little to address climate change but instead allow capitalist interests to buy their way out of social responsibility at the expense of people of color and the future of our planet. This is a cap and trade policy that does almost nothing to reduce carbon emissions and has incentivized the destruction of rain forests and attacks on indigenous people, the very ones who are doing the most to protect our planet. I strongly urge you to REJECT these policies.

Subject: Concerns about Updated California Tropical Forest Standard

Comment:

I am writing with sensitivity to express some concerns about the Updated California Tropical Forest Standard. I have commented on this case before. I am a professor at the London School of Economics, and have some 20 years experience in tropical environmental policy. My concerns are that the sections addressing leakage and safeguards are (as yet) too vague to have meaning. The risk of these problems is that the Standard itself might lose effectiveness, but also that there is a reputational risk that the Standard might have negative impacts on local forest users in tropical countries that might be highlighted by activist and human rights organizations.

Concerning leakage: the problem is that the text of the proposed Standard is too vague, and should include best practices for leakage accounting, including over the lifecycle of the proposed production. This problem undermines the environmental objectives of the Standard.

Concerning safeguards: the text of the proposed Standard is again too vague, and leaves judgement about negative impact to subjective judgment. Admittedly, the Standard is using the framework discussed in the Cancun Agreement and REDD+SES Version 2. But these frameworks are considered to be works in progress, and are likely to be updated, and indeed are currently widely criticized by some groups engaged in environment and development policy as insufficient. I hope it is possible for the California Standard to go one or more steps further than this current incomplete framework, and to create a better system of ensuring that carbon-forest schemes do not engage in negative impacts such as displacing settlements; restricting agricultural livelihoods; unfair and poorly communicated penalties for community participants; and other factors detrimental to local development such as debt.

Best wishes.

To whom it may concern:

Attached, please find the signatures of 25,589 Environmental Defense Fund supporters (5,787 of which who are from California) who have submitted an electronic comment in support of the Tropical Forest Standard. The comment they each submitted reads:

"I strongly support California using the state's global influence to protect tropical forests through endorsement of the Tropical Forest Standard.

"Cutting and burning tropical forests like the Amazon threatens their unique animals, plants and millions of people who depend on them to survive. Deforestation also contributes more greenhouse gas emissions than all the cars, trucks, and ships in the world every single year - stopping it is a critical step to avoiding dangerous global warming and meeting the goals of the Paris climate agreement.

"California's proposed Standard for rainforest credits would create incentives to protect tropical forests -- whole forest landscapes, across entire states or nations. It would also require that programs producing rainforest credits consult and collaborate with indigenous and other traditional communities who use and safeguard forests. And that their communities are partners who benefit from these programs. The money generated from the sale of the credits directly benefits the programs that are protecting forests, reducing emissions and creating sustainable indigenous livelihoods that are in harmony with and strengthen their cultural traditions.

"The world must address the loss of tropical forests to stop climate change. Now is the time for California to directly promote the reduction of greenhouse gas emissions from the cutting and burning of tropical forests. We can't save the climate without tropical forests. The California Air Resources Board should endorse the California Tropical Forest Standard."

Subject: Scientists urge endorsement of California Tropical Forest Standard

Comment:

We are 110 scientists-ecologists, economists, anthropologists, geographers, and climatologists. We are all directly involved with research to better understand climate change and to identify the best ways to avoid its most dangerous impacts. Many of us have spent decades working in the Tropics.

We include 10 lead authors of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change; 7 members of the United States National Academy of Sciences; 6 Fellows of the California Academy of Sciences; 1 member of the European Academy of Sciences; 1 member of the Australia National Academy of Sciences; 4 current or former Directors General of the Center for International Forestry Research; and 2 MacArthur "Genius Grant" fellows. We have collectively authored hundreds of articles in Science, Nature, and other top scientific journals.

We are writing to strongly urge the California Air Resources Board to endorse the California Tropical Forest Standard (CTFS). We believe that California has a unique opportunity to leverage its global leadership on climate policy to advance a broad and inclusive agenda to address climate change by protecting tropical forests at scale.

The message we convey in the attached letter is this: slowing the loss and speeding the recovery of tropical forests is a critical part of any successful global strategy for minimizing the negative impacts of climate change. The CTFS is an important step towards unlocking this potential.

As a California resident, I am writing to urge you not to endorse the California Tropical Forest Standard, and to ensure that these tropical forest offsets never are accepted into California's carbon trading system, or adopted by out-of-state entities like the International Commercial Aviation Organization (ICAO).

Carbon offsets allow big emitters in California to keep polluting, instead of reducing their carbon footprint. They perpetuate pollution hotspots and prevent California from taking real action on climate change. If the ICAO were to adopt tropical forest offsets, it would allow airline emissions to continue growing while putting tropical forests into the market over the protests of local communities. It would perpetuate pollution in California, while stealing lands - often through force and fraud - from Indigenous People and other rural communities in places like Brazil and Indonesia. This would be totally unacceptable.

Tropical forest carbon offsets lack integrity, pose unacceptably high risks of violating indigenous and human rights, and are impossible to police across national borders. California should not be encouraging them through the endorsement of the TFS.

Comment:

I am the Clean Energy Lead with 350 Bay Area and we have been involved in trying to set a cap on GHG emissions from refineries in the Bay Area through our advocacy at the Bay Area Air Quality Management District for many years and we work on energy issues as a party in rule-makings at the CPUC. We are active on legislation that appears every year that refines the state's climate goals. So I am familiar with the issue of offsets and how they are currently being used in the state's cap and trade system which is not yet coming close to achieving our part of getting us where the planet needs to be by 2030. Free allowances are a big part of the problem.

I am strongly opposed to having the Tropical Forest Standard added into the mix of tools as it will only succeed in making fossil fuel companies or other emitters hide their real pollution that is affecting our communities here in California. They need to be incentivized to not emit what they do in the location they do it. It is an imaginary trade-off of possible carbon sequestration from forests that someone believed would eventually be cut down when there are no guarantees that either that was going to happen or would be kept from happening as there are no real ways to enforce it over time. Look at the ways the rainforest is burning now, how these fires were started. And we know we need to decrease emissions from the source. There have been no studies done that prove these offsets could or have ever done anything to decrease emissions. It would be giving any emitter a way to continue doing what they are emitting while not considering the rights of indigenous people who live in balance with nature in these forests while providing no incentive for them to stop their practices in our state.
