Comment:

Please consider my invention that reduces tailpipe emissions from cars and light trucks. It is unique in that it does not affect the flow of exhaust from the vehicle.

Subject: economic growth

Comment:

Building an economic foundation from the top down is like building a bungalow on the beach at low tide.

For instance, scrap the bio-degradable plastic idea.

Make all plastic recyclable and pay the pittance required to get the poor to pick it up. This will not only clean up a lot of litter (and garbage) but give an added resource to those that subsist on the lowest economic level.

Third: opening new industries for properly processing all (recyclable) plastic, jobs, jobs, jobs.

Forth invite and jump-start plastic processing and manufacturing.

Less importing and more local economic growth.

Of course, if it was me I would look into revamping the entire system. Patchwork laws and rules to bolster a failing (out of your control) decrepit economy, but from the bottom up. This will take teamwork but if you really want control of your own future you might want to be open to alternatives.

Feel free to contact me.

1) Each member of the Stakeholder Group should declare any conflict of interest, such as involvement in, or recipient of revenue generation from the CARB protocols, project development, project ownership, or employment by CARB. No such disclosure is identified in the COMPLIANCE OFFSETS PROTOCOL TASK FORCE INITIAL DRAFT RECOMMENDATIONS, October 7, 2020. Declaring conflicts of interest is a standard disclosure for committees that have the means to modify protocols that affect carbon market participants and commerce.

2) Forest carbon sequestration and storage is an active area of research with the potential to improve current CARB forest carbon protocols. The Task Force should provide a mechanism for collaboration with the forest carbon research community, including comparative studies of CARB protocols with direct measurement of CO2 in the forest, a widely employed method.

Comment:

Indigo Ag commends CARB and the Task Force for their efforts to consider new opportunities for compliance offset protocols to incentivize GHG benefits from the agriculture sector. We encourage CARB to take a different conceptual view of cropland management practice changes, focusing on overall performance rather than individual practices. This will involve adoption of new approaches to project definitions, quantification, and aggregation. Please see the attached comments for further details.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide comments on this draft report. Indigo Ag applauds the work of CARB and the Task Force and urges you to consider pursuing new approaches to broad, rigorous offset protocols for agricultural land management. There are millions of acres of cropland across California and the U.S. which would benefit from the transition to climate-smart agricultural practices.

Thank you,
Max DuBuisson

Comment:

Regarding the even-aged management update and the new rules for variable harvest unit sizes: even 50 BA can be considered a shelterwood in most of our temperate forest ecosystems.

Shelterwoods tend to promote shade tolerant, 'climax' species-like hemlock and cedar and discriminate against the early seral species-like Douglas-fir and redwood. Climax species are not as resilient as early seral species and with climate change becoming a more critical variable, this is an important distinction that needs to be recognized. There needs to be more distinct guidelines and differentiation between regeneration and stand improvement treatments with even-aged silviculture. Not all treatments are regeneration.

Secondly, there is an absence of guidelines for uneven-aged management and specifically patch size for regeneration in this silviculture system. The three Indian Tribes I have worked for in the Pacific northwest dictate that patch size is not to exceed 3-5 acres with certain exceptions made for particular forest types-like lodgepole pine and upper elevation forest types.

IGSD STRONGLY SUPPORTS and is GLAD TO SEE the proposed Modification(s) to Ozone Depleting Substances (ODS) protocol adding R-22, R-134a, R-125, R-32, and R-143a as eligible.

We also strongly suggest that the protocol be clarified that avoided emissions--such as avoided annual/operational R-22 leakage from supermarkets not yet required by regulation to switch--be eligible under the protocol.

Our read of the existing protocol suggests that this might already be the case, since the protocol includes "reductions in "Emissions of ODS from leaks and servicing through continued operation of equipment." However, additional clarity on that point could be very helpful.
