Subject: Implementation of AB 398- Geographic Sourcing of Offsets

Comment:

At the recent Oct 12, workshop a question was raised about the geographic sourcing of offsets given the statute at Sec. 38562(c)(2)(E)(i)(I)and(II)state: "no more than one-half may be sourced from projects that do not do not provide direct environmental benefit in the state". There was a suggestion that this term was interchangeable with "in state" verses "out of state" sources of offsets. AB 398 does not use the term "in state". Rather, it defines "direct environmental benefits in the state" as follows: "...are the reduction or avoidance of emissions of any air pollutant in the state or the reduction or avoidance of any pollutant that could have an adverse impact on waters of the state." This definition allows offset projects neighboring California to be considered on a case-by-case basis rather than an outright exclusion of all projects that are not located in-state. Rather than reinterpret the intent of the Legislature, the exact language from the statute should be used in regulations. Thank for the opportunity to provide comments.

Subject: Comments on Cap and Trade system amendments

Comment:

I thank the California Air Resources Board for the hard work and example they have shown the rest of the world for the last many decades. My remarks regarding the changes to the cap and trade system are oriented towards what in my view is best for the environment we all depend on as well as being politically sustainable. The atmospheric scientific community has made it clear that methane is the most important emission to reduce. I recommend ARB concentrate how to reduce methane emissions whether or not they are anthropogenic. The current offset protocols only include certain methane emissions. That is leaving others to emit. For example, there is no protocol for capturing methane along outcrops where methane naturally emits. Many mines that once emitted methane and injected the methane into pipelines are not doing so now if they have gone out of business, or the natural gas price is so low there is no reason to inject the methane into pipelines. If it is too difficult to amend the current protocols to provide for capture of this methane perhaps the LCFS standard could be amended to include electricity generated from waste methane. There is currently no economic benefit to take waste methane and generate electricity with it or inject it into a pipeline with such low natural gas prices and electricity prices. Regarding all GHG reduction protocols invalidation should be related only to the project implementation of the protocols. To allow a violation of some other regulation unrelated to the emission reduction under ARB provides for 2 enforcement actions related to some event that had nothing to do with reducing greenhouse gas. The enforcement action by ARB is more likely to have the potential to take the project out of operation and thus allow emissions to resume.
