Subject: Increase ZEV Floor Percentage - ZEV Credits

Comment:

If the state increases its Minimum ZEV floor percentage requirement at a faster rate than 2% per year, then the environment will improve and the state economy will improve at NO cost to the tax payer. California makes its own electricity and a good portion of its own electric vehicles. California imports the majority of its oil and gasoline powered automobiles. Have the auto makers produce electric cars or purchase ZEV credits from manufacturers who do. It's a no-brainer for California. California has nothing to lose. Raise the minimum ZEV floor percentage faster!

Subject: Public Comments: Zero Emission Vehicle (ZEV) Investment Plan (Cycle 2 Plan)
Comment:

Green Commuter is an all-electric vanpool, carsharing and fleet replacement company. With respect to the Cycle 2 plan, our experience in the field, including Los Angeles as well as rural areas and CalEnviroscreen-disadvantaged communities in Fresno, Kern and Merced counties, informs the following comments:

> $4-6 million for transit is an inadequate allowance to effectively advance the Decree goals. ZEV buses are very expensive capital investments (along with required infrastructure) and this relatively-limited amount creates a highly competitive funding opportunity that may only benefit two or three agencies.
> $2 million will not go very far to support the installation of Level 2 EVSE in rural areas. For the most part, rural communities are woefully behind and underserved in terms of power grid modernization; most sites will require panel upgrades or replacements to accommodate durable EVSE infrastructure in the long term.

We respectfully urge Electrify America and ARB to consider prioritizing both of these critical investments as Cycle 2 plans are evaluated.

On behalf of the City of Santa Monica, I am writing in support of Electrify America's proposed Cycle 2 ZEV Investment Plan. Santa Monica supports the focus on DCFCs in the Los Angeles metro area, and particularly, the emphasis on providing DCFCs in close proximity to multi-unit dwellings. I recommend increasing the proportion of MUD stations in Table 7.

Comment:

Dear Committee Members,

I am pleased to be able to voice my thoughts regarding the Cycle 2 ZEV Investment Plan. I am excited that many areas of our state will have access to zero emission electric vehicles, especially areas that are exposed to air quality challenges. However, for a rural area such as ours, electric vehicles pose a challenge.

I represent Bear Valley Unified School District's transportation department. We are a resort town located in the San Bernardino Mountains at an average elevation of 7500 feet. In order for our students to participate in athletic events, Arts and Science educational trips and other school related activities, we must transport off the mountain. Some of our trips are as far as 300 miles round trip. The closer trips would be 120 miles round trip. That being said, When a bus departs the mountain, it is approximately 60 miles in one direction to the closest destination. An Electric vehicle would still be required to return to the school, climbing up steep grades , running lights and heaters. The range of the vehicles and the storage capacity of the batteries would be challenged by our needs.

We currently have a fleet which has 12 diesel buses, 6 CNG and 2 gasoline vans. We have been granted the replacement of two of our diesel buses with CNG buses by AQMD in the latest round of Rural School Bus Replacements. My hope is that as we move forward replacing diesel buses with cleaner technology, is that there will still be room for districts such as ours to qualify for CNG buses. While they are not zero emission, they are still a renewable energy source that burns cleaner and will allow us to travel farther. We want to be an active part of the state's solution to help our children have a cleaner future. Opening up at least part of this grant for CNG buses to rural districts such as ours, that must travel long distances to enhance our students educational experience, is part of that future.

Thank you for allowing me to comment on this important decision.

Respectfully,

Debbie Hallinan

Transportation Manager

Bear Valley Unified School District

Subject: ARB should allow H2 FCEV to compete with BZEVs
Comment:

It is with great sadness to note that ARB is showing open bias and partisanship towards one form of ZEVS (namely Battery ZEVs) and ignoring the other form of ZEV, namely hydrogen fuel cells (H2 FCEVs). BZEVs offer numerous air quality benefits but so do hydrogen fuel cells.

However Hydrogen fuel cells offer substantial more advantages than BZEVs. Let me list the top 4:

Advantage 1) Disposal issues. Hydrogen fuel cells don't have the same scale of battery disposal problem at the end of battery life. Each BZEVs have 4 battery packs with numerous cells in each pack. These batteries will be consumed in 10 to 12 years, after which these may be used in stationary sources for few more years. Then what? These HUGE number of spent batteries (in the tens of millions) have to be recycled. How many recycling plants have been built? Currently, lead acid batteries have very advanced recycling plants but these recycling plants emit lot of toxic waste: in air, groundwater, solids. Lithium ion batteries may not emit that much but still there is a potential for serious environmental discharge. Has there been any estimates of how many recycling plants that need to be made? Why is ARB not addressing this issue? The fact that air pollution is reduced with batteries, but solid waste and air waste are created when batteries are recycled should awaken our senses Advantage 2) Potential recycling plants in EJ communities. Recycling plants are constructed where land is cheap and labor is plentiful. These are typically in EJ communities. Beverly Hills and Bell-Air will not allow battery recycling plants in their neighborhood. California has done a tremendous job in highlighting the environmental distress currently present in EJ communities. By emphasizing BZEVs, at the expense of H2 FCEVs, we are indirectly creating another hazardous waste generating recycling plant industry in EJ areas. Let's be cognizant of this danger.

Advantage 3) Spent batteries may end up as waste. There is no assurance that recycling plants will be constructed in enough numbers and on a timely manner to recycle ALL of the spent batteries emanating from BZEVs. As a result, many batteries (we are talking millions here) may find itself being disposed off in the landfill, waste or shipped to third world countries for disposal. Is this fair? Aren't we creating a major environmental crisis - potentially on the scale of plastic disposal crisis we have today?

Advantage 4) Lithium availability. Lithium availability for large scale penetration of BZEVs is not assured given that lithium mines are spread out in diverse sometimes politically unstable geographical regions. One or two countries can defacto take over these mines and can create a cartel like situation where general availability can be severely limited. Such restraints do not exist for H2 FCEVs. Platinum is used in H2FCEVs but the quantities are limited and are mainly sourced from South Africa and other stable countries.

Summary. Given (1)the serious disposal concerns of tens of millions of spent batteries, (2) the potential for creating a hazardous recycling industry in EJ communities, and (3) that raw lithium may face an OPEC cartel type of situation, I would urge ARB to give H2 FCEVs adequate funding for infrastructure.

H2 FCEVs is more sustainable over the long term than BZEVs.

Thanks

Ranji George

Please note, while I was at the SCAQMD, under Dr. Alan Lloyd who later became the chairman of ARB, I was heavily involved at the formative stages for both BZEVs and H2 FCEVs. I support both technologies, BZEVs for the short term and FCEVs for long term.

Comment:

As someone working to increase EV adoption in the Bay Area, I particularly appreciate the continued funding (35% of proposed Cycle 2 investments) for low-income and disadvantaged communities. Other appealing aspects of the proposed Cycle 2 plan include the stated support for residential charging, for instance in the strategic placement of DC Fast Charging stations to accommodate retail and nearby multifamily dwellings, and the proposed actions to simplify home charging through integration with CARB's "one-stop-shop" and create new financing opportunities and financial rewards for demand response systems. I hope that Electrify America will continue to partner with local governments, community organizations, and property owners as they bring more critical investment to support EVs our State.
