California Air Resources Board - chc2021

The attached 20,659 individuals support rules that are fair, equitable and can be feasibly implemented to ensure access for all Californians to our marine environment is maintained. The Commercial Harbor Craft Rule as it pertains to the 174 inspected Commercial Passenger Sportfishing Vessels (CPFV) fails on all accounts and is requested to be amended to return CPFV to the same compliance pathway as Commercial Fishing Vessels (CFV).

CARB states in the SRIA that all but one CPFV that supports sportfishing and marine life education (whale watching) tours would need to be replaced with new steel hulled vessels to meet the mandate.

CARB further has received documentation from marine engine manufacturers in September of 2020 that the engines do not exist for commercial fishing and CPFV, and they do not intend to manufacture them for California.

The California Maritime Academy informed CARB that the technology does not exist for CFV or CPFV and if it did it would create vessel stability and heat issues creating life health and safety concerns for passengers and crews.

Even given the same information on vessel and passenger safety, CARB has arbitrarily chosen to separate out CPFV from CFV for a separate, infeasible, and economically damaging compliance path that will increase global GHG emissions.

By proposing a rule where existing vessels can't be retrofitted those vessels become effectively worthless. Thus, CARB creates an economic hardship on existing vessel owners who will be unable to sell the existing vessel to retire loans or to raise capital for a new vessel.

Further, CARB provides no opportunity to mitigate the cost of acquiring new vessels, thus ensuring that the cost of constructing and financing a new vessel and the loss of value in the old vessel will need to be fully recovered in ticket prices or owners will go out of business.

The necessary increase in ticket prices will adversely impact those of lower economic means to access the ocean for recreation, harvesting food or educational adventures.

Because recreational pursuits are elastic and compete with all other opportunities, increased ticket prices will reduce participation rates impacting coastal communities, California tourism, and conservation funding as families choose other pursuits and anglers choose other states or countries.

The closure of businesses will have a significant impact on coastal communities where sportfishing and whale watching help to drive tourism or simply provide an affordable opportunity for a family to access the ocean. In addition, sportfishing vessels work with local Title 1 schools, non-profits, veteran groups, and others to provide marine education and access to those that may live near the coast but otherwise would never be able to afford to be on the gorgeous Pacific waters of our coast. Even for those that can afford to construct a compliant vessel, the increase in ticket costs will be significant and jeopardize affordable access and decrease the reach of school and non-profit programs.

Sincerely,

Greg Hurner, Partner
