Hello and to whom it may concern,

I wanted to express my sincere interest in the “Advanced Clean Trucks” rule. Adopting a rule such as this one is crucial for our climate’s stability and health. I personally think that this rule should be far more ambitious and stringent than 30 percent given how few years left we have before irreparable climate damage occurs, so I fully support this and then some. California should lead by example not only in terms of renewable energy, but also in ensuring that acquiring the resources necessary for switching to electric vehicles does not mean exploiting or destroying Indigenous lands, especially in the global south.

Thank you,
Sierra
