In response to the issue of the upcoming diesel regulations to reduce PM2.5 emissions; don't allow a controversial report produced by an unethical scientist to cast uncertainty on such an important decision for our state.

Controversial because it's analysis and conclusions are disputed. Unethical because any person who LIES about his educational background is just that, a liar. Please, in a rush to appear "green", don't make a decision on questionable science. You are very close to another Climategate. All it would take is a pause in the process to allow reputable scientific data to follow the proper peer review process to restore credibility to your decision. It's time to separate politics from science. Thank you,
