California Air Resources Board
Sacramento, CA

Dear CARB Chair Nichols,

The increase of global warming factors deeply concerns me. California's AB 32 should set a strong example to greenhouse gas producers. Especially, industries should pay for their emissions, not receive FREE pollution permits. The money should go toward promoting clean energy.

The following should at least be controlled:

a) All new development should meet high energy efficiency standards;

b) Vehicles should be required to have less & less emission of green house gases;

c) Power plant production of electricity must generate less and less of these same gases.

I look forward to your response,

Respectfully,

David Spurlin
