I am writing to voice my opinion on the proposed regulation to reduce greenhouse gas emissions from vehicles operating with underinflated tires. A Sacramento Bee story published in March of 2009 stated that such a law would possibly reduce carbon dioxide emissions by .5%. That is a miniscule amount to go to such trouble for. Threatening people with fines and jail time for such a reason is ridiculous. This smacks of being nothing more than another tax, another way to bleed the public dry as if we don't have enough problems.

Thank You
