Dear Nichols,

Recently my environmental science class has been researching on California's Air Qualities and I happen to see the rule that is being proposed. As a California resident, I just want to say that I am for the rule.

The expenses for health care is too high for people to be paying nowadays. Also, diesel trucks and buses are responsible annually for 4,500 premature deaths, 71,000 cases of asthma, and 450,000 lost work days. As a young adult, I do not my family and future kids to suffer.

This rule will save thousands of lives in the future. This also cost the state and taxpayers, like myself, more than it costs to clean-up. This rule is just here so that the trucking industry will follow the health rule along with the other industries. Everything seems fair and I hope you take my opinion in to account. Thank You

Sincerely, Tang Nguyen
