I live on 38th Avenue and I have lived there all my life. My teacher, Mrs. Arabia has given me a map, that shows which are the most polluted truck routes. As I was looking on this map I saw that I was surrounded by pollution. 35th Avenue, High Street and San Leandro Street were the most polluted. I was surprised to see that my ~~high~~ high school, Fremont Federation was actually located right on a polluted street, High Street. This means that I have been breathing in fresh diesel fumes for about three years, soon to be four since I plan to attend the same school next year. I didn't find San Leandro Street much a surprise since me and a friend of mine had become dizzy just by walking down that street (I assumed there was not enough oxygen). Please add filters to the truck because the money isn't worth the health or the lives of others, and the earth is dying as well.
